The Psychology of Social Norms

Muzafer Sherif

With an Introduction by the Author

Introduction by Gardner Murphy

CONTENTS

Introduction to the Torchbook edition	vii
Introduction	xxi
I. The Problem	1
II. THE LACK OF PERSPECTIVE OF THE SOCIAL PSYCHOL-OGIST	6
Community-Centrism Due to Lack of Perspective—Standardized Variations in Perception of Familiar Objects and Events —Distance as a Condition for Necessary Perspective—Controversy over Primitive Mentality—Primitive Mentality and Individual Differences-Dualism of Individual vs. Social Approaches—Recent Orientations—Summary
III. THE FRAME OF REFERENCE IN PSYCHOLOGICAL
Phenomena	26
Psychologizing in the Social Sciences—Some Psychological Data at the Basis of our Problem—The Frame of Reference in Relation to Various Psychological Problems Conclusion and Implications for our Problem—Summary
IV. STIMULUS SITUATIONS IN SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY	46
Norms First External to the Individual—
Some Characteristics of the Stimulus Field
-Social Stimulus Situations-Norms as Stimuli, Their Effect on our Outlook-Summary
V. THE INDIVIDUAL IN THE GROUP SITUATION	67
The Individual in Social Contacts—Crowd	- Situations, Their Negative and Positive Effects—Norms Becoming Common Property in Crowd Situations—Special Properties of Crowd Situations-Implications of the Psychology of "Illusions" for the Study of our Problem—Experimental Approach

The Problem of Value—Some Facts from the Psychology of Affectivity—Frames of Reference in Everyday Personal Evaluations—Social Fixations—The Value-Attitude Relationship in Social Psychological Research—Two Major Lines of Research—The Experimental Formation of Attitudes—Advantage of Starting with Established Values Rather than with Items in Individual Response VIII. Basic Needs and Social Values Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem—Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	VI. THE FORMATION OF A NORM IN A GROUP SITUATION	89
Tested—The Autokinetic Effect, its Possibilities for our Problem—Procedure—Individual Experiments—Group Experiments—Discussion of Results—Critical, Unstable Situations and the Rise of Slogans VII. Social Values The Problem of Value—Some Facts from the Psychology of Affectivity—Frames of Reference in Everyday Personal Evaluations—Social Fixations—The Value-Attitude Relationship in Social Psychological Research—Two Major Lines of Research—The Experimental Formation of Attitudes—Advantage of Starting with Established Values Rather than with Items in Individual Response VIII. Basic Needs and Social Values Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem—Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	Situations Conducive to the Standardiza-
Tested—The Autokinetic Effect, its Possibilities for our Problem—Procedure—Individual Experiments—Group Experiments—Discussion of Results—Critical, Unstable Situations and the Rise of Slogans VII. Social Values The Problem of Value—Some Facts from the Psychology of Affectivity—Frames of Reference in Everyday Personal Evaluations—Social Fixations—The Value-Attitude Relationship in Social Psychological Research—Two Major Lines of Research—The Experimental Formation of Attitudes—Advantage of Starting with Established Values Rather than with Items in Individual Response VIII. Basic Needs and Social Values Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem—Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	tion of New Norms—Hypothesis to Be bilities for our Problem—Procedure—Individual Experiments—Group Experiments—Discussion of Results—Critical, Unstable Situations and the Rise of Slogans VII. Social Values The Problem of Value—Some Facts from the Psychology of Affectivity—Frames of Reference in Everyday Personal Evaluations—Social Fixations—The Value-Attitude Relationship in Social Psychological Research—Two Major Lines of Research—The Experimental Formation of Attitudes—Advantage of Starting with Established Values Rather than with Items in Individual Response VIII. Basic Needs and Social Values Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem—Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals dividual Experiments—Group Experiments—Discussion of Results—Critical, Unstable Situations and the Rise of Slogans VII. Social Values The Problem of Value—Some Facts from the Psychology of Affectivity—Frames of Reference in Everyday Personal Evaluations—Social Fixations—The Value-Attitude Relationship in Social Psychological Research—Two Major Lines of Research—The Experimental Formation of Attitudes—Advantage of Starting with Established Values Rather than with Items in Individual Response VIII. Basic Needs and Social Values Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem—Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals ments—Discussion of Results—Critical, Unstable Situations and the Rise of Slogans VII. Social Values The Problem of Value—Some Facts from the Psychology of Affectivity—Frames of Reference in Everyday Personal Evaluations—Social Fixations—The Value-Attitude Relationship in Social Psychological Research—Two Major Lines of Research—The Experimental Formation of Attitudes—Advantage of Starting with Established Values Rather than with Items in Individual Response VIII. Basic Needs and Social Values Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem—Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals Unstable Situations and the Rise of Slogans VII. Social Values The Problem of Value—Some Facts from the Psychology of Affectivity—Frames of Reference in Everyday Personal Evaluations—Social Fixations—The Value-Attitude Relationship in Social Psychological Research—Two Major Lines of Research—The Experimental Formation of Attitudes—Advantage of Starting with Established Values Rather than with Items in Individual Response VIII. Basic Needs and Social Values Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem—Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	ments—Discussion of Results—Critical,
VII. Social Values The Problem of Value—Some Facts from the Psychology of Affectivity—Frames of Reference in Everyday Personal Evaluations—Social Fixations—The Value-Attitude Relationship in Social Psychological Research—Two Major Lines of Research—The Experimental Formation of Attitudes—Advantage of Starting with Established Values Rather than with Items in Individual Response VIII. Basic Needs and Social Values Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem—Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·
The Problem of Value—Some Facts from the Psychology of Affectivity—Frames of Reference in Everyday Personal Evaluations—Social Fixations—The Value-Attitude Relationship in Social Psychological Research—Two Major Lines of Research—The Experimental Formation of Attitudes—Advantage of Starting with Established Values Rather than with Items in Individual Response VIII. Basic Needs and Social Values Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem—Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·	113
Reference in Everyday Personal Evaluations—Social Fixations—The Value-Attitude Relationship in Social Psychological Research—Two Major Lines of Research—The Experimental Formation of Attitudes—Advantage of Starting with Established Values Rather than with Items in Individual Response VIII. Basic Needs and Social Values Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem—Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society I Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	The Problem of Value-Some Facts from	_
Reference in Everyday Personal Evaluations—Social Fixations—The Value-Attitude Relationship in Social Psychological Research—Two Major Lines of Research—The Experimental Formation of Attitudes—Advantage of Starting with Established Values Rather than with Items in Individual Response VIII. Basic Needs and Social Values Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem—Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society I Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	the Psychology of Affectivity—Frames of
tions—Social Fixations—The Value-Attitude Relationship in Social Psychological Research—Two Major Lines of Research—The Experimental Formation of Attitudes—Advantage of Starting with Established Values Rather than with Items in Individual Response VIII. Basic Needs and Social Values Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem—Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals
Research—Two Major Lines of Research— The Experimental Formation of Attitudes —Advantage of Starting with Established Values Rather than with Items in Individual Response VIII. Basic Needs and Social Values Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem— Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	tions-Social Fixations-The Value-Atti-
Research—Two Major Lines of Research— The Experimental Formation of Attitudes —Advantage of Starting with Established Values Rather than with Items in Individual Response VIII. Basic Needs and Social Values Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem— Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	tude Relationship in Social Psychological
The Experimental Formation of Attitudes —Advantage of Starting with Established Values Rather than with Items in Individual Response VIII. Basic Needs and Social Values Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem— Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals
Values Rather than with Items in Individual Response VIII. Basic Needs and Social Values Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem— Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	The Experimental Formation of Attitudes
ual Response VIII. Basic Needs and Social Values Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem— Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	-Advantage of Starting with Established
VIII. BASIC NEEDS AND SOCIAL VALUES Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. BASIC NEEDS AND SOCIAL VALUES (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem— Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	Values Rather than with Items in Individ-
Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem— Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	ual Response
Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem— Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	VIII. BASIC NEEDS AND SOCIAL VALUES	143
IX. Basic Needs and Social Values (Continued) The Naïve Setting for our Problem— Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfy-
The Naïve Setting for our Problem— Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	ing Needs
The Naïve Setting for our Problem— Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	IX. BASIC NEEDS AND SOCIAL VALUES (Continued)	154
tion of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	The Naïve Setting for our Problem-of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society 1 Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors 1 X. "Human Nature" 1 Norms as Survivals	Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterizavated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	tion of the Developing Ego—Involvement Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society 1 Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors 1 X. "Human Nature" 1 Norms as Survivals the Make-up of the Ego—Summary Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	vated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Note 1. Rôle of the Individual in Society 1 Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors 1 X. "Human Nature" 1 Norms as Survivals
Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating Factors X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals
Factors 1 X. "Human Nature" 1 Norms as Survivals		187
X. "Human Nature" Norms as Survivals	Note 2. Cases in Which Basic Needs Are Dominating
Norms as Survivals	Factors	190
▼		194
Index
	Index	204